BORIS THE SPIDER

A Journal of Duplicious Deeds, Raw Power, and Sacred Greed

"Oh, what a tangled web we weave
When first we practice to deceive."

--Sir Walter Scott--

06/01/96

FOUR GAMES END!!!

Congratulations go to Chuck Hanna for his "Green" win in Britannia; to Chuck Wren for his winning "Utterqualestine"; our fourth game of HIS DRY EAT THE WORLD to Ross Estabrook; "Stink Gordon" our 1st (part of) and 2nd (including) game of STELLAR CONQUEST; and Jim "The Tongue" Fryling for his 3rd(!) MP win (bedeviled Australia). All I can say is they'll be gunning for you next time!

Colours have been determined in "Ethnized", our 2-Brit game, and Claudio Chiodo's Romans have run amok, but have taken the losses so far. The Blue pockets of Wales resistance bypassed (Downlands, Kent, Lindsey, and Mercia) have sacked the Severn first, and likely will soon pay for their insolence. The Welsh have abandoned their western peninsulas to reinforce eastern Wales. The little blue Cymruans (Turn 3) win.

Boris has documented until bought a Mac Performa 4200. His Mac Tower is still playing over 100 games of Civilization out of memory. Anyway this means a Volume change ($7 \rightarrow 6$) when we switch entirely to the new system.

Creditline just been sold, and the new owners are more than doubling the basic rate from $8.95 a month to $15.95 a month. Sure they're also more than doubling the free hours to 9/month, but I seldom use 3 hrs/month, so it's no value to me. They give me about 1-hour notice of the rate change, too. So credit are good. Creditline are good. Civilization is good. DON'T SEND E-MAIL TO ME VIA GENIE AFTER 27 FEB unless told you otherwise.

WALL STREET JOURNAL—Two days have made no move, wounding the British forces, pressing into the Fabulous assertion, but will it give him the victory? In due course will it just until the equilibrium of power again exist? England is already beginning to relax. So imminent, and having to wait the American reader fleet, to more than capable of crowding the Russian reader also. Proponents of the peace talks are great.

EMBASSY MEET

VICHIA: It would seem that the Russian has shown his true colors with the thrusts of his armies now heading toward the Austrian Capital. Methinks that this war has gone badly due to poor planning and the inability of the Austrian Monarchy.

If looks like the war will not end in '00-1918 after all and that the Emperor will perish soon.

BORIS WORLD PRESS REVIEW

Washington Post: The Austrians appear to be about to suffer a major setback. The Tsar will not be in the mood for peace what with the treasuries of Vienna on the madly road to St Petersburg. England's policy has ever been to keep the rest of the other two at each other's throat, with eyes on a few loose centers (ern and here).

MURKWOOD: Your Marvel! Serbo-Russian troops fought to the last man for their 'Teut' ag, after the naked Turks and haughty Germans. A new dynamic has been established in Europe with a renascent Germany sandwiched between a theocratic Russia and expansionist Turkey. Will the de facto Anglo-German alliance further Germany's proximity to the Turkish empire?

EMBASSY BEAT

BELGRADE--The Russian government is disappointed that neither Germany nor Turkey would let the Russian troops go home or even ask for their help to defeat the other.

BERLIN: The Kaiser is pleased with the performance of the troops and due to the capture of large amounts of enemy supplies has raised the pay of each soldier by 1 mark. SO pfeinzege (the price of our great beer) a month.

BORIS WORLD PRICES REVIEW

Bugged Pranks: It is funny that two super powers are so focused on each other that they ignore the potential help Russia could offer in their private.

CLIFFHANGER--The Austrian Millennium has begun! proclaimed Archduke Wormtongue as he pro-mighted his Code von Tryling, a collection of 664 regulations from the sensible (it will be on the right side of the road) to the catastrophic (a single European currency, the Marchioness the ridiculous) first come, first served. It must be noted, every home office and place of business must have a picture of the Archduke in a place of honor. It remains to be seen how long the reign of terror will last.

EMBASSY BEAT

London to Paris: Being in only my second game and only having had contact with one other player previously, it is impossible that you were singled out as the new guy. Perhaps you shouldn't make such unreasonable demands to the players you should be treating as allies.

ROM: Foreign Minister Fischer announced he had ordered Adm Cetshabri of the 2nd Fleet sacked "for wilfully disobeying orders, gross incompetence and wearing an extremely silly hat at the last naval review". The 2nd Fleet proceeded to TUN where the Adm was removed from command in a plain paper bag.

VIE/NA to PARIS: Your Excellency, I must disagree with your assessment of the war in Europe. This is the first time we have crossed swords with our fellow combatants as well. I find it unlikely that you are the victim in a conspiracy of known parties to eliminate a relative newcomer and upstart from the European Political Scene. Were that true, I too would probably be a target. Rather I suggest you are the unfortunate victim of allies who found a mutual interest in relieving you of your resources in order to support their own territorial interests.

BORIS WORLD PRESS REVIEW

General Gazette: Baschal Oscidatress has found an oasis in India and, informing his own country, General Tetrahedron sold the Empire to him. Solo for the arms, him is negotiating a deal for her with Jabb's the Hut, Aun Lingumi and the Poplar winturfing somewhere in the Med. Prince Vlad and the Loy of Order of Carpathian Assassins are claiming responsibility for dislodging Russian A RUM.

End game statements:

PURPLE: Red with the Saxon, usually does well in other games I'm in. But it looks like I provoked them too much and made it easy for the Danes.

RED: I will not take on Arthur again and will learn to submit before I get destroyed by a stronger force who could afford a gamble.

Congrats to Chuck on a game well played. I enjoyed it even though I played my position poorly and still strive to do better on our next clash over the fields of Britain.

GREEN: I've never won a game of BRITANNIA where neither the Angles nor the Saxons were significant factors at the end. And I've never seen the Danes score a lot of points, which is why I was so downcast at the damage the Romans did to the Welsh, and the Picts due to the Caledonians. But the Angles and the Saxons disappeared and the Danes did score a lot of points, and I think them all.

Achtung! Don't point out that my bidirectional Dein's play of file 202 in 13 in DR 7.2 disallows his technically legal upgrade of 13 passing EY 20M in DR 7.2 and an extra 1M above (so the DR 8.1 is invalid). BA has 310M, not 180. Friesen could well score at SX if he didn't open DR 8.2 should've concluded as follows:

Friesen sells 1 BY and buys 1 BA ($51M + 150M = 211M$). BA sold out. EY drops to C140.

Chinnery, Trak, and Fisher pass.

Zirkel sells 1 SZ and 1 BA and buys 2 HK ($195M + 144M = 339M$). HK sold out. BA drops to E74. SZ drops to F80.

Friesen buys 2 BA ($111M + 24 = 125M$). BA sold out.

All pass.

Comment from GM - the future prospects of the NNRN is very bleak, however a lesson learned in the '94 18-Diamond game at Aviation Con revealed a strategy of starting a company with the INTENTION of never turning it back to shift the cash to another railroad, this circumstance may make hotel/fort worthwhile (any volunteers?)

(ADV) CIVILIZATION

Let's get organized!

SIGNED UP: Beck, Boyum, Carbonneau, Farlow, Morrison, Naet (9), Deb Osborne, Ringhofer, and Ziecke.

The first thing we need to do is decide upon what we're playing, with what options, and how to handle the Trading Phase. I'll discuss each of these in turn.

ADVANCED CIVILIZATION is much like basic CIVILIZATION except for these points:

- 1) Up to 7 players can play CIV, up to 8 can play ADV CIV.
- 2) The "Resolve Calamities" phase precedes the "Acquire Civ Cards" phase in ADV CIV.
- 3) The AST has been altered (again) in ADV CIV.
- 4) The Trade Expansion deal is standard in ADV CIV.
- 5) Four new tradable calamities are introduced in ADV CIV. They are Treachery, Superstition, Slave Revolt, and the ever popular Barbarian Horde. A player can no longer be the primary victim of more than two calamities in a turn.
- 6) When trading in CIV, one announces the number of cards offered, their total points and one commodity in the deal. In ADV CIV one need only state the number of cards and the identities of two of the cards to be dealt.
- 7) When you sack an opponent's city in ADV CIV, you may "loot" a random trade card from the victim's hand and transfer 3 tokens from your stock to treasury.
- 8) ADV CIV adds a 5th Civ Card color group (Yellow = Religion). Mysticism now costs 50 and belongs to both the Yellow and Blue group.
- 9) In CIV, "Law" is the only CIV card with 7 in the deck; in ADV CIV there are 8 of every card, nor is there an 11 Civ Card hand limit.
- 10) New Civ cards have been added: Mathematics (2:0, Blue & Green), Mining (120, Orange), Road Building (140, Orange), Military (180, Red), Deceit (80, Yellow), Theology (.50, Yellow), Enlightenment (180, Yellow), and Monotheism (220, Yellow).

Optional rules in this case means whether we'll use the Western Expansion map or not, and if we're playing CIV, whether to use the expanded trade deck. There are variants mentioned in ADV CIV rule/Gamer's Guide, but let's not run before we can walk.

The Trading System: I'm offering a choice of three systems:

- 1) Normal: Players write call and fall each other and make deals, sending the GM a note on what they transferred. This might work if we went to two month turns.
- 2) A player's orders would list 1st, 2nd, and 3rd choices and the priority of cards they are willing to trade, along with conditions such as points, number of cards, players to be denied certain cards, etc. No player could be allowed more than 5 trades per round. The player to deal first would be determined randomly.
- 3) The Trade Phase would be replaced by a "Market Phase". The players draw Trade cards normally, then may sell some for cash back to the market and may buy one of each commodity not sold with the cash at a price usually higher than the face value of the card. Further, the market itself will offer specific trades. Calamities are now neither drawn nor traded, but will be assigned to the players based on who's had the least beginning when at least one player has 3 cities. A second, completely random calamity will be assigned once at least one player has 5 cities.

Well, that's about it. Let me know if you'll play only CIV or ADV or either, whether to use the expansion trade deck (CIV only), and the Western extension map, which of the trade options you prefer (and which you won't play under), and finally your nation preference list and initial starting location for each. Use the map opposite to name the provinces. Africa and Italy/Iberia should send starting locations both with and without the Western extension map. If we get sufficient agreement we'll begin in earnest next time.

DUNE They Speak

Endgame Statements

ERRATA: Fremen died 7. Daliwon the battle 8-7. Shadout Moper is in the family.

THE CAST

FREMEK (Morrison): Oh noes for money and good cards. I had good position but the weather during my purchases of cards went sour after the final two turns. It would have helped if someone else had received all the attention. I drew so many effects that the Guild was able to skip in (having all my leaders who were alive sitting in dachshund prison did not help either). My tactic is to do Dave ice waiting for the right time to make his move.

I held on to the Family Atomics and the Weather card hoping to catch more them in the excitement. Unfortunately I never had enough there in the right place to make that happen as the Guild never went in there.

GUILD (Anderson): I won!

HARKINNEN (Bryden): I thought that we were playing longer game resulting four strongholds to win... how annoying.

GMS: I thought Harkinnen was going to win this one easily after he pasted the Fremen twice, but he inexplicably started grabbing for splices (with a cultist and 7 leaders) and lost sight of the objective. Devotion is opportunity to pray on a toothless Fremen while Atreides was recovering. Harkonnen was out space grabbing the Bene Gesserit and too dispersed, and the Imperium actively reinforcing Atreides. And he lost it. Congratulations to Dave for a fine game of sneakiness.

So far we have Dave Anderson, Ron Fisher, Kevin Wilson, Dale Osborne, John Bryden and that old sodding Wayne Morrison signed up for a sequel. Could take two more. If we have seven or more, well add the extra Treachery cards from the expansion game. The standard plan game includes all optional and advanced rules except the "4+ stronghold" victory condition. We will offer these options:

- 1) Alliances can't win.
- 2) It takes 4, not 3, strongholds to win.
- 3) The Bene Tielkuu, Ix, and Landsraad can be chosen as factions.
- 4) The "Space Harvest" expansion (won't be easy).
- 5) "The Desi" expansion (sassy, but probably brutal).
- 6) The Bryden Rule - If Option #1 is in effect, an ally need not share its power.

(interested [and signed up] players should send their faction preference list and votes on each of the six options. Majority prevails. If we have 7 or 8 players, option #2 automatically wins and #3 succeeds.)
